

EXHIBITION INVITATION

The German photographer Nicole Keller passed an image on to a colleague in another European country – with a simple invitation: to respond to it with a new photograph within two weeks. Inspired by what he saw, felt or imagined, he created a new image that was then passed on to the next person in another country, and so on. This created a visual domino effect that spread across borders, cultures, languages and landscapes until all 27 member states of the European Union were connected.
